SANTIAGO ALSO WRECKED BY QUAKE AND IN FLAMES.

Santiago, the capital of Chili, a city of 300,000 people, was wrecked by the earthquake that devastated Valparaiso. News of the disaster was received in New York late this afternoon in th shape of a brief cablegram reading as follows:

SANTIAGO DE CHILI, Aug. 16 (Delayed in transmission) - easy victory for the result was in doubt The worst earthquake ever remembered occurred this evening, beginning to the last fifty yards, so gamely did at about 8 o'clock. Houses fell in the streets, which were filled with Miller's coaxing. Tangle was not to be hysicrical people. The clerks at the cable office say that the telegraph denied, however, and, clinging with lines to the coast are severed. The electric lights are cut, and as the great determination in the last sixteenth correspondent is trying to file this despatch the earthquake is again three tengths away after making most of the pace. Mohawk II. was beaten a starting. He can hear people wailing and praying in the streets, while sixteenth of a mile. the fire bells throughout the city are ringing out alarms.

This is confirmation of the fear that has been felt for the safety of Santiago since the announcement that an earthquake and fire had wrought havoc in Valparaiso. The two cities are only seventy-five miles apart and are the leading towns in the republic of Chili.

LOSS OF LIFE ENORMOUS.

The combined population of Santiago and Valparaiso is close to 500,000. Undoubtedly fire followed the eathquake in Santiago as it did in Valparaiso. The loss of life has been enormous,

Santiago is the third largest city in South America, being exceeded in population only by Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Ayres. It is situated at the foot of a mountain range and on the bank of an insignificant river called the Mapocht

One of the oldest citles in America, it is a beautiful and interesting place. The streets are wide and well kept. The principal street, the Alameda, a triple highway three miles long, is probably the finest thoroughfare on the Western Hemisphere.

Because of the frequency of earthquakes few buildings in Santiago are more than two stories high, but many of them are massive in construction. The loss of life must have been great in these.

The city is situated in a rich and productive section of Chili and is the railroad centre of the republic. It is the seat of the State University and other important educational institutions. This is the closing month of winter in Santiago, and the city was undoubtedly crowded when the earth-

Earthquake shocks have always been part of the life of Santiago. At times they were almost continuous, but mild. The last great earthquake

BALL GROUNDS, Chicago, Aug. 18.—Chicago had prepared for the coming of the Giants and clever was the work. As the Champions caught sight of the field to-day the effect was startling. On every stand and on the boxes were myriads of small white flags and through the centre of each ran a broad yellow streak. The Giants were not slow to grasp the meaning. Scores of the flags also bore pictures of McGraw, and through the portrait also ran the yellow streak.
